The Temple Mount is sacred to both Muslims and Jews, but the Muslim Palestinians want to divide it up for themselves, the West Bank and East Jerusalem. In Jerusalem, the issue of dividing the Temple Mount is complicated by the political rhetoric of the right-wing coalition's spokesman, the pro-settlement settler rabbi Uri Ariel. He said last year that the site should be shared by Jews and Christians. While Palestinian authorities have closed down churches in the area, Jerusalem's official, Islamic tradition allows synagogue on the Temple Mount," Mr. Ariel said in a radio interview. "When you build a house or a hotel, you don't object. But the temple people want it for their religion." The sermon was recorded in Hebrew and played to the settlers in the mixed group
