Temperature-modulated dielectric dispersion of clathrin heavy chain polypeptides in chicken erythrocytes. The temperature dependence of static and dielectric dispersion of clathrin light and heavy chains in erythrocyte membranes was examined. The effects of peptides of the carboxyl-terminal half of the heavy chain sequence were also examined. The measurements were made at 0.5 and 4 MHz with the temperature ramping up to the studies and maintained at a constant level for additional studies. Comparative studies of erythrocyte and brain tissue from different species were done in parallel to rat liver. A general depression of the static and dielectric dispersion of erythrocyte membrane samples with increasing temperature was observed at temperatures above 20 degrees C. The dielectric dispersion of erythrocyte membranes was more sensitive than the static investigations in that, in the dielectric studies, it was observed that the structure of the erythrocyte membranes changed at a constant temperature (4 degrees C) while the static measurements only altered after a

VARIOUS PHYSICAL CHARACTERS [Duty and Desire]: A young man with a cold, heartless character was desirous of power. In his eyes, fighting was his path to the top, and his sword was his sole companion in battle. [Lion: The Lion of the Day]: The kindhearted lion who watches over you. If you make a mistake, or if you must endure being trampled, the Lion will put you back on your feet. [Welcoming Spirit]: The Bellmantle man who welcomes you. [Terrible Thunder]: A man who came into the world from madness. Whether he be a monster or a man of kindness, you must give great care to those he protects. [Majestic King]: A man who never loses. He is a great man that desires to help, and a fierce man that does what is right.

CLASSES [Archer]: A man who uses the bow as his favorite weapon. [Bladesman]: A strong man who uses the sword. [Bowman]: An athletic man who wields the bow. [Keeper]: A man who uses the shield. [Gunner]: A man who uses a gun. [Ranger]: A man who uses traps. [Receptionist]: An ecstatic man who wields the staff. [Carpenter]: A man who uses a hammer. [Marksman]: A man who uses a pistol. FACTION [Great Brigade of the Party]: For the worst of the worst, this faction once ruled the kingdom. The many atrocities they committed were the source of the people's suffering. [Great Brigade of Mercy]: They once held the royal title, and their manners, values, and opinions were the highest among the noblemen. If you join them, you will be able to feel like a member of royalty. [Iron Brigade of the Party]: An official faction with members with various occupations and opinions. [Iron Brigade of the Battle]: A faction where all ten members are from the same school. They look down upon members of other factions. [Ragged Troupe of the Party]: A faction where people from many different occupations are gathered together. [Ragged Troupe of Adventure]: A faction that was temporarily disbanded until the player finds all their members. [Ragged Troupe of the Undead]: A faction for those who wish to kill monsters from

Q: AngularJS directive evaluating view code with Meteor I'm trying to create a reusable set of data-bound input fields using AngularJS and Meteor. The solution I've ended up with works like this: The problem is that in Meteor, otherInput comes from a DB or a Meteor method, so I need to evaluate the variable content, for example, when I write `{{otherInput}}`, my view gets evaluated in JS and I get an error like undefined variable. What I'd like is to be able to write something like this: and get the following data-model for all my inputs: `input0 = otherInput input1 = otherInput2 input2 = otherInput3 input3 = otherInput4 ...` My current code looks like this. I've defined a directive that I call input, in my template I have the form and I use it as follows: And in my controller, I have the following code:

Template.inputForm.directive('input', function () { return { restrict: 'E', scope: { model: '=' }, template:
    '{{model}}', replace: true }; });
```

Template.inputForm.events({ 'click #save': function
(event, instance) { instance.model = getInputModel();
} }); I found out that {{getInputModel()}} gets evaluated by angular and that's what I need in order to be able to write directly `{{getInputModel()}}` instead of `{{otherInput}}`, but I can't figure out how to get the view evaluated by Angular and not Meteor. Any ideas? A: As suggested by natey, I had to wrap the Meteor method in
