Effects of acute and chronic administration of nicotine on radiolabelled alpha 4-beta 2- nicotinic receptors in the rat cerebellum. Radiolabelled alpha 4-beta 2- nicotinic cholinergic receptors were characterised in the rat cerebellum and their responses to acute and chronic treatment with nicotine were examined. Both alpha 4- and beta 2- nicotinic cholinergic receptors have a high affinity for [3H]epibatidine, and the latter also has a low affinity for nicotine. The rank order of potency of nicotinic agonists was : 1R,2R-iprindole > dihydro-beta-erythroidine > 1S,2S-alpha-OMPA > cytisine > nicotine > McN-A-343. Guanyl nucleotides (Gpp(NH)p, GTP gamma S), ADP-beta S and (+)-bromoacetyltrimethylammonium (BETAA) strongly inhibited responses to acetylcholine, and to a lesser extent [3H]epibatidine. When nicotinic cholinergic receptors were labelled with [3H]epibatidine, they were further purified and the presence of alpha 4 beta 2- nicotinic receptors was confirmed. Acute treatment with nicotine (3 mg/kg) did not change the density or affinity of binding of [3H]epibatidine in cerebellar membranes from rats pretreated with nicotine for 7 days. Furthermore, chronic treatment with nicotine (0.3, 1 or 3 mg

French Prime Minister Edouard Philippe raised the prospect of some workplaces deciding to shut down before the peak of coronavirus infections, as the government prepared to publish a plan for "last-minute" measures to tackle the fast-spreading pandemic. In an interview with BFM TV, Philippe said the first wave of infections will pass as quickly as possible. He added that some businesses may need to stop operating before that by taking precautions like closing shops or canceling working-from- home schemes, but said that it would be difficult to impose a complete lockdown over a sector or region. "Taking a sector or a region could be a solution, but it's a solution we need to have when the impact of the first wave of infections is over," Philippe said. "It's hard to close shops and to close certain areas of the territory, because businesses need to operate."
