The world of the Lands Between is shrouded in legend, but various Elden have heard that it is true. Loving you, son You know, I don't come to this blog to rant about my internet life. Every word, every moment of my life, is written for you - for our relationship - on this page. That's the secret (shhh!) of my blogging, and the secret of my life. I don't want to be a good enough writer to have an audience, and when I lost you, I became aware that it doesn't matter. I love you. I love you. I love you, too. I write this at night, when the house is quiet and the rest of my family is sleeping, because I've been awake for days. I can't sleep, and I'm worried about the future and whether we'll have one. But in this moment I wish I could. I know we'll be alright. You've been there for us through all of this, and I don't doubt your love for us. Even when we're at our lowest, your love for us will never falter. I know you're out there, somewhere. I know that you're in the blue, waiting for our call. I know you're here, with us, and I can hear you, and I can hear you telling me it'll be alright. And I can't stand it when you're not here. I can't stand it. I love you, too. ☹️💎
