Signature Golf Signature Golf began operations in 1997 in San Diego, California, when business magnate Bernie Simon bought 80 acres of land from the government of San Diego, and commissioned architect Phillip Troyani to design a championship golf course. In a press release, Simon explained the project: "We brought in professionals from all over the world to help us design the most unique golf course in the world with its own international vibe. The blue water at the property is spectacular and we couldn't have designed a course better suited for our island setting. This is the first of what I hope will be many signature golf courses around the world." By 2003, Simon had sold 99.9% of Signature Golf to Westlake Capital Partners, a private equity firm based in Chicago. Since then, the land has been used as an Olympic training course and as the home of the CIMB Classic, a golf event contested by top pros in Asia.
